DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 17-23 have been examined. Application 09/802,082 (System and method for providing consumer rewards) has a filing date 03/08/2001 and Claims Priority from Provisional Application 60221468 (07/26/2000). Assignor: Transmedia Network Inc and Assignee: Idine Rewards Network Inc.

Response to Amendment

2. In response to Non Final Rejection filed 10/04/2005, the Applicant filed an Amendment on 08/22/2006, which amended claims 17 and 18.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Feidelson (US 6,345,261).

As per claim 17, Feidelson teaches:

A method for allowing a consumer to receive benefits associated with an incentive program created by a business, the method comprising:

accepting via a network a registration of a member consumer entitling the member consumer to benefits of the incentive program, the registration including information indicative of a credit card of the member consumer (see column 8, lines 1-13);

comparing credit card transactional information representative of a plurality of transactions with the information indicative of the credit card of the member consumer to determine if one of the transactions was performed by the member consumer at the business (see column 10, line 51 – col 11, line 30);

and rewarding the member consumer in accordance with the benefits of the incentive program if it is determined in the step of comparing that the member consumer did perform a transaction at the business (see column 11, lines 5-45).

As per claim 18, Feidelson teaches:

A computer-readable media having instructions for determining if a transaction by a member consumer meets a requirement of a rewards program of a member business, the instructions performing steps comprising:

receiving transaction information including information identifying a plurality of consumers where at least one of the consumers is not the member consumer, information identifying a plurality of businesses, where at least one of the businesses is not the member business, information pertaining to the purchase of a goods or service by each of plurality of consumers at one of the businesses, and information pertaining to the use of credit card by each of the consumers at each of the businesses comprising an identifier for the respective business and a credit card number for the respective consumer (see column 10, line 52 – col 11, line 30); determining if one of the consumers identified in the transaction information is the member consumer (see column 11, lines 5-30);

determining if one of the businesses identified in the transaction information is the member business (see column 11, lines 5-30; col 13, lines 19-50); and if it is determined that the consumer is the member consumer and the business is the member business, rewarding the member consumer in accordance with the requirements of the rewards program of the member business (see col 13, lines 20-65).

As per claim 19, Feidelson teaches:

The computer-readable media as recited in claim 18, wherein the identifier for the business is compared against a list of identifiers of member businesses to determine if the business is the member business and the credit card number of the consumer is compared against a list of credit card numbers of member consumers to determine if the consumer is the member consumer (see col 11, lines 5-30).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 20-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Feidelson (US 6,345,261) in view of Walker (US 6,327,573).

As per claim 20, Feidelson fails to teach:

The computer-readable media as recited in claim 19, wherein the information pertaining to the purchase of a good or service by the consumer at the business comprises a day of sale and a time of sale. However, Walker teaches a system that evaluates the time and day of consumers' transactions in order to give said consumers awards, which are time restricted (see Walker figure 4b item 460; col 11, lines 47-65). Therefore, it would have obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the application was made, to know that Feidelson's administrator system would use the credit card and member information from registration form to identify member purchases at participating businesses and would identify the time and day of said purchases in order to give members awards which are time restricted.

As per claim 21, Feidelson fails to teach:

The computer-readable media as recited in claim 20, wherein the requirement of the rewards program comprises a specification that a transaction must occur on a predetermined day and the day of sale is compared against the predetermined day to determine if the requirement of the rewards program was met. However, Walker teaches a system that evaluates the time and day of consumers' transactions in order to give said consumers awards, which are time restricted (see Walker figure 4b item 460; col 11, lines 47-65). Therefore, it would have obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the application was made, to know that Feidelson's administrator system would use the credit card and member information from registration form to identify member purchases at participating businesses and would identify the time and day of said purchases in order to give members awards which are time restricted.

As per claim 22, Feidelson fails to teach:

The computer-readable media as recited in claim 21, wherein the requirement of the rewards program comprises a specification that a transaction must occur during a predetermined time and that the member consumer make a reservation to transact business during the predetermined time, and the time of sale is compared against the predetermined time and the reservation time to determine if the requirements of the rewards program were met. However, Walker teaches a system that evaluates the time and day of consumers' transactions in order to give said consumers awards, which are time restricted (see Walker figure 4b item 460; col 11, lines 47-65). Therefore, it would have obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the application was made, to know that Feidelson's administrator system would use the credit card and member information from registration form to identify member purchases at participating businesses and would identify the time and day of said purchases in order to give members awards which are time restricted.

As per claim 23, Feidelson fails to teach:

The computer-readable media as recited in claim 22, wherein comparing the time of sale to the reservation time comprises examining the time of sale to determine if it falls within a window of time based upon the reservation time. However, Walker teaches a system that evaluates the time and day of consumers' transactions in order to give said consumers awards, which are time restricted (see Walker figure 4b item 460; col 11, lines 47-65). Therefore, it would have obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the application was made, to know that Feidelson's administrator system would use the credit card and member information from registration form to identify member purchases at participating businesses and would identify the time and day of said purchases in order to give members awards which are time restricted.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 17-23 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
